The Keio Economic Observatory Review is a journal published by Economics section of Sangyo Kenkyujo (Institute for Economic and Industrial Studies) in Keio University. This journal presents research which has been conducted by members of the Institute. Besides original articles, it includes the reprints of the corrected articles selected from the recent Keio Economic Observatory Occasional Papers.

The Economics section is known as 'Keio Economic Observatory'. An 'observatory' usually means an astronomical or meteorological institute for the observation of natural phenomenon. This section is named as 'observatory' because all researchers in this section wish to treat economics as an empirical science and thereby intend to analyze economic phenomena objectively, being completely detached from any ideologies, by making use of economic theory as an equivalent to theories of other physical empirical sciences.
